ARTICLE SIGNED "THE VAGABOND"

WRITTEN TO THE GAZETTE—REFERS TO CITY AFFAIRS.

TALKS OF MANY ABUSES

Favors Rule by Commission—Cleaning of Sidewalks—Plans for Future.

Some weeks ago the Gazette Printing Company announced that it would be glad to receive communications on the relative merits and demerits of the proposed change in city government from the present system to that of rule by commission. Many have availed themselves of the offer and have written on the subject. The following communication, while it dwells upon the proposed change, also touches on other city affairs which are called abuses for some better term. It is signed "The Vagabond."

"To the Editor:
"Starting your crusade for a change from the present system of municipal government to that of rule by a commission, the Gazette has taken a stride forward. I was not inclined at first to favor the change, feeling perhaps that some other city should try it out first, but after making an investigation of civic affairs myself I have concluded that the change would be most beneficial.

"I do not mean to decry the members of the present city government or their labors in behalf of the taxpayers of the city, but the general inefficiency of the whole system, Janesville is incorporated under a special charter. Lawyers have contended that this makes us immune from many of the requirements of the state laws, and recently a case which dwelt upon this phase went through the supreme court where decided that this city was not a municipality by itself but subject to the state laws.

"Perhaps that is putting it a bit too strong, but still it is the broadest understanding of the contention. Today there are other cases pending before the railway commission, in which public utilities are concerned that are based upon the same ground. It has been a fight between the city and public utilities for many years, between the city and citizens on matters of importance; all because of the special charter we are working under.

"The change to a rule by commission would do away with all this. It would obliterate the old charter as it were.

"The great increased cost of running a city by such a method as is proposed at first appears the taxpayer and makes him an enemy of the proposed change. Wait a minute, however, before passing judgment. For every year past the streets of Janesville have been the subject of much discussion. The aldermen from the different wards have been torn by dissension relative to their improvement. They have perhaps done the best they could, have patched them up here and there, but new ones for short stretches and still the work is most incomplete.

"One must blame the aldermen entirely for this. Enough money has been expended to fix the streets properly for years to come, but it has been wasted. If I wanted I mean it has not been judiciously handled. The ward funds are responsible for this. The aldermen while honest and good businessmen in their own lines, have in many cases proved poor managers of the city. Rubble, valued at many cents a foot, torn from streets where curbing has been laid, has been laid, has been thrown away or used for filling low lands, when it might have been judiciously used on adjacent streets.

"The street commissioner has been hampered in his work by having to run to the aldermen of this ward or that before he could make repairs and often times favored resident districts of the ward have been given more than their share of the ward fund, while other places have been neglected. Under the rule by commission this would be done away with. The street commissioner would have to deal with but one man. This man, a resident of the first, the second, or the third, fourth or fifth ward of the city, would be elected by the whole city and not by any gang of ward-healers or any particular ward.

"He would not have to play politics to the residents of Racine street or to the Center avenue constituents. He would not have to watch the interests of the Washington street residents or of Hickory street or of South Jackson. He would look after the whole city. His salary would be sufficient so he could give his whole time to the work and he would not be tied down by business affiliations as many of the aldermen are at present. The change would be most beneficial to the city as a whole on the questions of streets alone.

"The amount of this saving can only be estimated, but it is safe to say it would be more than the salary paid one of the commissioners and leave a neat balance for the salaries of the others. Not only that, but the streets of the city would be put into excellent repair at a minimum cost to the taxpayer. You ask how this is assured and I can merely refer you to other cities where rule by commission is in vogue and read the reports which show this to be a fact.

"In any corporation that devotes any thought to progress they hire the best men possible for the important positions. They pay large salaries, better than any other cost of construction—only better goods, but more. What is true of a corporation is true of a city. What is a city but a great corporation of diverse interests in which every taxpayer is a stockholder? If this be true then why not follow the lead of the men who have given this idea their earnest thought and have discovered that the best results can be obtained by employing skilled labor only and paying their managers big salaries to conduct their business.

"You might take up every line of the city's business in the same way and show a saving. The fire department, the police department, the purchasing department, all are subject to the same saving inquiry. The same thing holds good in all. The companies, men chosen for their worth, paid enough money so that they can afford to devote their whole time to the business of the office, will certainly be able to accomplish more than men whose private business comes first and the city's business second. This is common sense and needs no argument.

"While talking of city abuses I might make a suggestion that it is now winter and that snow is liable to come. The city has certain duties to perform in the way of keeping its public buildings clear of snow and ice. Neglect in this department was most noticeable after the last storm and in some cases the janitors of school buildings waited for the sun to do their work, while the pupils stamped and slushed through the snow and water. About the city last night was the same way for hours after the storm and this is true of all cities as well. I would like to add one more suggestion and that is that too much has been done during the past year to cripple the efficiency of our police department. Reference is frequently made to the days of the late John Hogan and how he handled the crowds and many of us remember the city and its able management of the city affairs. His good right arm and his stout, hickory club have been felt on the backs of many of the citizens who did not move quickly enough or whom he found doing some piece of petty mischief.

"Hogan did not have many into court, but took the law into his own hands and whaled the offenders unmercifully if caught. The fear of Hogan was more than that of his hickory club and crowds following as if by magic were disappeared as if by street corners appeared. Today it is different. The policemen are fined or forced to resign if they use their clubs to enforce the law and in consequence the lawbreakers have but little fear of the officers when told to move on.

"It is perhaps in the way of progress to repudiate brutality on the part of officers, but the fact remains that a good taste of the late John Hogan's hickory treatment on the backs of many of our rising citizens would work wonders in keeping the streets clear of fights and the corners clear of the objectionable who stand and comment on the passers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Wis., Nov. 27.—The second business men's banquet of the season was held last night at the Carlton with an attendance of one hundred. State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery was the guest of honor and delivered a stirring address. A number of the business men were called upon for remarks and all responded freely. Attorney J. E. Gellner acted as toastmaster. The object of these banquets is to get in close touch with the local advancement association for the upbuilding and boosting of the tobacco city.

Rev. Father Marhan of St. Joseph's Catholic church was the prime mover in the purchasing of a new pipe organ for the church at a cost of $1,500. The instrument will be installed in a week or two, after which a sacred concert will be given. The purchase price of the organ was collected in various ways—sales, dinners and entertainments by the ladies of the congregation.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A NOVEL CURE.
In sociological experiments the novel and effective method used in McKeesport, Pa., to deal with drunken husbands is the latest.

In brief, it consists in making the wife the treasurer of the family.

By giving her control of the purse strings she is able to keep the man of the house reasonably sober.

Whenever a habitual drunkard is brought before the legal court he is confronted with this alternative:

Either he must sign a bond which gives the wife the absolute control of his wages for one year or go to jail for six months.

It is said few husbands hesitate.

And the police are careful to see that they keep their bonds.

Experiment has proved that the remedy is a good one. It puts the husband on his good behavior, and it insures the family support.

Being dependent upon his wife for so much as a plentiful lot of tobacco, your rampant, wife beating lord is very careful how he treats his almoner.

Few wives, it is said, abuse their privilege as purse holders. If anything, they are too prudent—just what might be expected.

Already it has been demonstrated that the new departure in reform has gone far to reduce the number of complaints of abuse and neglect on the part of drinking husbands.

Elsewhere it is the old way—

The husband gets drunk, beats his wife, drives the children into the streets, is arrested, jailed. The family is deprived of support, and there are pauperism and crime. And the man is not reformed.

And many a poor wife silently endures maltreatment, fearing to make complaint lest she and her children be left dependent.

Hail to the McKeesport system! It is not only effective, but just.

If the husband is unable successfully to manage the finances of the family, let him turn the business over to one who is competent.

It may be somewhat galling to his self respect to confess failure, but it is better than to go to jail and ruin his family.

He may depend upon the family treasurer to give him a square deal.

REPORT IS ON WAY, SAYS NOTIFICATION

ZELAYA'S ACTION WILL SOON BE OFFICIALLY KNOWN IN WASHINGTON.

ANOTHER GUNBOAT IS SENT

Princeton Is Ordered to Proceed to Corinto, Nicaragua, at Once Where Vicksburg Is Already Watching Developments of Revolution.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The gunboat Princeton was ordered by the navy department to sail for Corinto, Nicaragua, to join the gunboat Vicksburg, already at that port. The Princeton is now at the Bremerton navy yard, Washington, undergoing repairs.

The United States government is anxious to know whether the time is ripe for the recognition of the provisional or revolutionary government in Nicaragua. Unofficial advisers say that the advance of the insurgent forces has been so rapid that the crisis cannot be far off.

Prompt action by the United States in formally recognizing the Estrada government would mean the success of the battle to oust Zelaya. Zelaya might prove serious if the strength of Zelaya's army has been underestimated.

Report of Deaths Coming.
A bill in the proceedings against President Zelaya was caused by the reception of an official notification from the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires that the full record of the trial of the two Americans shot by order of the court-martials would arrive on the next steamer.

Before the message was received Secretary Knox had had an interview with John Barrett, director of the bureau of American republics, and it is understood that in view of the remarkable successes of the revolutionary forces it was decided to wait until Monday to see if Estrada would be successful in occupying Managua, in which case the recognition of the revolutionists would follow as a matter of course, and all need for American intervention would cease.

United States Has Gone Limit.
It is recognized by the representatives of foreign governments here that the United States has gone to a limit in this matter which it could not do safely in dealing with a more powerful adversary without a declaration of war following.

No diplomatic criticism of the course of the state department has been discovered.

Momentarily expecting the overthrow of the Zelaya dynasty, the state department has flashed a long and confidential telegram to United States Minister Merry at Costa Rica, and other telegrams to the naval station at Colon and to the commander of the Des Moines in Greytown harbor.

What important information they contained is being guarded with great secrecy by the state officials.

SEALED HEARING IN MINE INVESTIGATION

Secret Hearing Held by Commission—Appointed to Fix Blame for Cherry Disaster.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Work of investigating the responsibility for the Cherry mine disaster was begun in Chicago behind closed doors by the state mine investigating commission appointed by Gov. Deneen. Protectors of representatives of the miners and others interested in the investigation were ignored.

Others than the St. Paul mine at Cherry will be made the subject of inquiry by the specially appointed commission. Conditions in mines in all parts of the state of Illinois will probably be affected. The principal effort will be to compel the establishment of two shafts that shall reach directly to the very lowest level from the surface in every mine and afford two exits for the miners.

The commission is composed of nine members, three from the mine operators, three from the mine employees and three independent members.

Commissioner John H. Walker of Danville, Ill., one of the miners' representatives, declared that he had discovered the cause of the Cherry disaster within 36 hours after his arrival there.

He also said he could place the blame exactly where it belonged.

The commission will hold its next session Monday and on the following day will convene at Cherry.

Importance of Teeth.
Dr. Oiler has stated that the question of preserving the teeth is more important than the liquor question, says Scientific American. No doubt much dyspepsia is due to decayed and defective teeth, which preclude complete mastication of the food (even if anybody in America had the time to eat properly). Dentists, like doctors, are now beginning to realize that their true mission is not "a general rebuilding system," but a systematic and well-considered effort to prevent and overcome the decay and loosening of human teeth.

The British Constitution.
In England there is no such thing as a constitution, as we understand the word in this country. The British constitution is merely a mass of law, consisting partly of statutes and partly of decided cases and accepted usages, in conformity with which the government of the country is carried on from day to day. The constitution of the United States is written and can be read in 20 minutes' time, while the British constitution is unwritten, save as it is contained in hundreds of volumes of statutes and reported cases.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL IS ASSURED

SUBSIDY MEASURE WILL BE ADOPTED BY CONGRESS WITHOUT MUCH OPPOSITION.

IT WILL INCREASE GRANTS

Opposition in Senate Has Been Swept Away—House Will Endeavor to Increase Suma Granted to All American Ships.

Washington, Nov. 27.—At the coming session of congress, the ship subsidy bill will be passed without very much opposition.

The measure, say its friends, has passed the house in one form or another several times during the past few decades, but has been blocked in the senate as many times. This time there will be little opposition in the upper house, and the lower branch taking advantage of the situation probably will increase the sums to be granted to all American ships engaged in commerce between home and foreign ports.

Will Increase Grants. The measure as it now stands, and as it will be presented to the house, provides subsidies only to South American and Asiatic ports, and these are so meager that their effect in building up an American merchant marine representative of the richest nation in the world would not be very great. Those bounties, it is understood, will be increased to some extent and there will be a provision for extending the bounties to vessels plying to European ports.

Foes No Longer Feared. Friends of the measure assert that this provision has heretofore been left out to avoid opposition from the powerful syndicate operating Atlantic liners. They now hold that the opposition of those interests will no longer be able to influence congressmen in the face of a sentiment that has become sweeping.

PRINT FARM CENSUS SCHEDULE.

Document Is Completed—Nine Million Copies to Be Printed.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Census Director Durand has received from Assistant Director William F. Willoughby the general schedule for the census of agriculture, April 15 next, which Mr. Willoughby, in conjunction with Prof. Le Grand Powers, chief statistician for agriculture, and the advisory board of farm economists and other agricultural experts, has been formulating during the summer.

Director Durand has approved the form and subdivision of the inquiries and has ordered 9,000,000 copies of the schedule to be printed by the government printing office in readiness before January 1, although they will not be placed in the hands of the 45,000 farm enumerators until the usual time before the enumeration date. It is believed there are nearly 7,000,000 separate farms in the United States, each requiring a separate schedule.

The schedule is printed on both sides of a single sheet, 13 inches long and 10 inches wide, of white writing paper, 20 by 32 inches. The 9,000,000 copies will consume 4,500 reams of paper, which, counting 52 pounds to the ream, will make a weight of 234,000 pounds. The charge for printing, including the cost of paper, will be $13,650. It will take about three weeks to print them with the press running 10 hours a day.

CONSTABLE KILLS A NEIGHBOR.

Escapes from Mob Which Forms to Lynch Him.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 27.—Constable James H. Dobbs narrowly escaped lynching at Columbus after he had shot and killed William Thompson, his neighbor.

The killing was the result of a quarrel over the children of the men. Dobbs knocked Thompson down and then shot him to death. When word was brought here that a mob was forming to lynch Dobbs a number of officers hurried to Columbus in an automobile and brought Dobbs to this city, where he was held in jail.

Don Molnes Laid Hands Self.

Don Molnes, Ia., Nov. 27.—Harold Perkins, aged 16, who hanged himself to his bedroom door because he had been refused permission to attend the Drake-Ames football game, it is believed, expected his aunt to discover him and cut him down before he died. His neck was broken, however, in the jump from the chair.

Elevator Cases Postponed.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Every interstate railroad and every grain shipper in the middle west is affected by an order issued by the interstate commerce commission postponing until April 1, 1910, the effective date of the commission's order in the Peavey elevator cases.

Gridiron Death Are Twenty-Nine.

New York, Nov. 27.—With the close of the football season, statistics show that 29 players lost their lives through the game in different parts of the country this fall, according to a list made public here.

Many democrats belonging to the New York State organization are looking forward with curiosity, if not anxiety, to the report of the committee on credentials in the state convention next year, when a complete ticket from governor down is to be nominated. The contest for control of that committee, it is figured, will be very close between Charles F. Murphy and chairman William J. Connors and his friends.

GOMPERS IS CONFIDENT OF FAVORABLE DECISION

Believes in Sense of Equality and Justice Possessed by Supreme Court.

Washington, Nov. 27.—"I have full confidence in the eventual favorable decision in the case of myself and Messrs. Mitchell and Morrison when our petition for a writ of certiorari comes up in the supreme court next Monday," said Samuel Gompers.

"The confidence I have in my confidence in the sense of equality and justice which I know that great tribunals possess," he continued. "Had we been indicted for a criminal offense or sued civilly it would have been different. The essence of the whole proposition now is this: Under the constitution can a man be imprisoned at the behest of a possibly prejudiced judge without being accused of any crime? Can a man or a group of men be told by any judge, 'If you do this or so, I will imprison you?' Not that you will be apprehended, indicted and tried by a jury of your peers, but simply, 'If you don't do as I say, I will put you in jail.' It is in defense of our contention that such action by a judicial officer is beyond the law that we are here to take our imprisonment if it be meted out to us."

"I am disappointed at the attitude of the American press in this case. It seems to me that they do not grasp the fact that this attempt to imprison for contempt is a direct attack on the freedom of the press. They fail to see that to punish the publishers of a monthly magazine for printing what they wish and printing something that does not come within the class of a libel or a slander, is the exact equivalent of imprisoning the publisher or the editor of a daily paper. The press have not rallied to our support as I had hoped they would."

"If the supreme court of the United States declines to permit the issue to come before it for review or affirm the decision of the lower court, will you ask the president for a pardon?" was asked.

"I will not," Mr. Gompers replied. "nor will I willingly permit my friends to do so. Had I violated any law and been found guilty and sentenced to prison I might consider the question of seeking executive clemency."

Two German Aviators Killed.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—Dr. Breckmann and Hugo Francke, the two most daring members of the Aero club of Berlin, lost their lives through the collapse of their balloon Kolmar. Their bodies were found near Flum, Austria-Hungary.

TWO WOMEN KILLED BY POSSE.

Shot While Aiding Husband and Brother to Flee.

Williamson, W. Va., Nov. 27.—Firing from the doorway of their home on a sheriff's posse to give the father and brother of the girl time to escape, Mrs. Charles Daniels and her 16-year-old daughter were shot to death near Devon, Mingo county, by the officers.

The shooting of Mrs. Daniels and her daughter grew out of a family feud between the Christians and the Danfols on the border of Kentucky and West Virginia. The Christians lived in Mingo county, West Virginia, and the Danfols in Pike county, Kentucky. About three weeks ago George Christian ventured to the Kentucky side and was slain by Jim Daniels. Christian and Daniels were brothers-in-law and had formerly been allies.

To Fix Blame for Disaster.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 27.—A widespread investigation looking in every phase of the great St. Paul mine disaster in which 210 lives were lost, including the bodies of over 200 of the victims entombed forever in the depths of the sealed mine, is under way. State Attorney Eckert and Coroner Malin of Bureau county, after a conference, prepared to gather witnesses and data pertinent to the establishment of responsibility for the catastrophe.

The supper served by the people of the bakery was one of the best ever put up for a similar occasion, while the music was better than anything the local orchestra had ever given to the people of Brodhead.

The Real Leaders of Men.

In all ages of the world the real leaders, as well as the pioneers, have been the men who looked ahead and tried to forecast the future. The great generals fought their battles adown the misty years of perspective, they saw the hosts arrayed on the tented field, and heard the clash of arms.

DON'T BE BALD

Almost Any One May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair

You can easily find out for yourself if your hair needs nourishment. If it is thinning, getting dry, harsh and brittle or splitting at the ends. You simply have to pull a hair from the top of your head and closely examine its root. If the bulb is plump and rosy it is all right; if it is white and shrunken your hair is diseased and needs nourishment.

We have a remedy for hair troubles that cannot be surpassed. It has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 33 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. It will even grow hair on bald heads if the scalp is not glazed and shiny. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

It is reported that the republican members of the next general assembly of Virginia will vote with the prohibition-democratic legislators in the fight to pass a state-wide prohibition submission bill.

Glimpses of bleeding Spain. The above photographs show the Gate of Justice, a scene at the races and a type of the Spanish wanderer.

By EDWARD W. FOWLER.

has need, urgent need, of enlightened men, men who place progress before self humanity above all. Of such caliber was Professor Ferrer and his martyrdom in the cause of freedom has opened the eyes of all to the deplorable condition of the Spanish masses.

Information from workers of all classes, from the dockhead worker; from the peasant, sitting around the "posada" drinking his wine or smoking his cigar; from the small agriculturalist; all these will tell you the same story of the evil that Spain suffers from—oppression. Oppression from evil, church and state, and it would be a difficult matter to say which lies the heavier upon the poor of Spain. They are taxed to the uttermost, for it is an odd feature that the less a man has the more is he taxed. This may seem a paradox in a way, but it is true all the same, for the rich get off lightly through the free use of "palm oil," so well known in the political game of the world of Spanish politics. The great merchants get goods through by the judicious use of the dollar and the deficit the poor make up. When the state is through the church takes hold of him and he pays again and yet again. The question of religion in any, or of any country must of necessity be a delicate subject, yet if the pregnant causes of Spain's weakness are to be sought the subject cannot be barred. Professor Ferrer knew this. He preached against it. He incurred its enmity in life, seems to be crowned in death. The priests hang like a millstone around the necks of the poor have done for centuries, but it would seem the awakening has come. There are signs and signs speaking in no uncertain voice that this period of utter servitude is weakening. They have taken hearts from France, which adopted drastic measures and rid the people of a dominating power whose voice was louder than government. In Barcelona alone are over 170 religious communities and more have been added since these figures were given. Only a few short years ago the voice of a priest would have quelled any riot Barcelona ever saw; now the priests themselves are hunted from pillar to post, stoned and jeered, while the mass fare no better at the hands of the infuriated populace. The keynote of a nation must be its virile individuality. Under the domination of a church a man loses that individuality. He ceases to think and to work for himself; in a word, he defers. A nation which loses its self-reliance is bound to regress. It is the individual lack initiative the nation will. This summer the streets of Barcelona have run with the blood of a fratricidal struggle, a struggle such as France knew at the barricades of the Commune, when Napoleon fled and the red "cap of liberty" waved over the hills of France. Alfonso has the red history of France before him. Will he see the "writing on the wall"? He made one well nigh irreparable breach in the fortification of his throne in the war in Morocco. That breach has been further widened by the royal sanction to the death of Professor Ferrer. What are the thoughts of the dowager queen of Spain during these terrible times? All through the long years of Alfonso's infancy, and infancy accentuated by the faithfulness of the child, who fought with an indomitable courage against the covert attacks of Don Carlos and a malignant republicanism fought as only a mother can when such a mighty stake was the issue. Those years are indelibly printed upon her heart. Now it would seem these years of suffering, sorrow and tears are to go for another Alfonso, since his marriage at any rate, has caused more ruptures in Spain than she had known in many years. Spain is ill-cared to the last degree. Taking the towns of Talla, San Roque, Las Barajas, etc. there is a population of nearly 120,000. For these Spain maintains seven small schools over this wide area. From that storm center of Barcelona, comes warning after warning. On every hand a people ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-paid, living in houses, many of them that an Irishman would not house a pig in, they are ready for rebellion, smoldering with the rage of ill-suppressed anarchy and hate against a monarchy that dances with money and blood a war so senseless that the last advice state it is to be abandoned, and execute Professor Ferrer, the voice of progress and freedom. A monarchy that is silent to its people's cries cannot be bolstered up by a church, powerful though it be. Alfonso, young and irresponsible as he is, knows the old proverb, vox populi vox dei—"the voice of the people is the voice of God."

PROF. R. K. BLISS

Des Moines, Iowa.—Cow culture clubs are the latest in the club line in Iowa. They are being organized by an enterprising professor in animal husbandry at the State Agricultural college who is interested in the extension work. Professor R. K. Bliss. It is a movement organized with a view of increasing the output of butter from Iowa millions of pounds. It is a step towards solving the recent problem of having consumers for more butter than can be produced. Mr. Bliss urges that more cows are not necessary, but merely to increase the efficiency of the cows kept for dairy purposes. To this end he is organizing all over Iowa the cow culture clubs. The plans is for 26 farmers to club together, elect a president, secretary and board of directors, and hire a man whose business it is to visit each of the farmers every working day of the month. His duty is to weigh the food given the cow and estimate the pasture she will eat. Then he weighs the milk she produces night and morning and takes a test to ascertain the amount of butter fat in her milk. From this test he computes the amount of butter fat produced during the month, and also the cost of producing it. At the end of the year the farmer can tell approximately how much butter fat one cow has produced and the cost of producing it, and hence will make an intelligent selection of his cows for breeding purposes. The Valued Word of Praise. What more inspiring than a word of praise from those we love? It never breeds vanity; it just makes us want to be more worthy. Joy. Some people get married merely for the purpose of having a good time for three or four weeks before the wedding.

A Common Insinuation. Nearly every man who does not possess an automobile takes it upon himself to explain now and then that he could have one if he didn't pay his debts. Putting Premium on Vice. "A premium is put on vice," observes the Philosopher of Folly, "because most people prefer a bad man to one who is merely lazy and harmless." Encouraging. One of the most encouraging signs of the times is to be found in the fact that a man may be defeated in a political campaign without being reported to have taken a trip up Salt river.

Sharp Reductions on Ready-to-Wear Garments

As announced a fortnight ago, we have been making liberal reductions on Ready-to-Wear garments generally and the results have been very satisfactory—in fact very few days have passed that we did not have all the business we could take care of properly in the garment section, which means that the assortments are growing noticeably less.

What we want to impress particularly is that the women who want the most desirable things will make a mistake by putting off buying until January.

WHY? Because judging from the way the best suits' cloaks and dresses are being picked out; women who wait will be sorely disappointed in the variety to select from.

RIGHT NOW, from today on, we will make still greater PRICE REDUCTIONS, including odd garments, incomplete size assortments, small quantities and all such lines that are scasonable, but which we do not want to carry longer in the regular line.

We announce these sharp reductions to turn garments into money now and the saving will be so great that it makes it worth while.

Then again you get six or seven weeks more wear out of a garment by buying now. The advantage is all in the buyer's favor.

Our showing of sizes and colorings is unusually complete considering the lateness of the season. Suits, dresses and evening gowns for women and misses; coats, capes and separate skirts for women and misses; girls' and women's coats, a very splendid assortment and all made of wear-giving materials. No slighting in the making Christmas buying has already commenced. A good time to have desirable things put aside for you.

Deafness Cannot be Cured. . . .
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is, by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by a diseased condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is enlarged you feel deafness is there. In either case the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be restored forever; nine out of ten are cured by this treatment, which is nothing-but a diseased condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness caused by Catarrh of the Ear, if cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always so cool, with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

The Island of REGENERATION

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY TRAY WALTERS

The "Isle" was roomy and spacious, at least it seemed so in the fading light. In the morning when the sun shone through the opening, it would be flooded with daylight, but now when the sun was sinking behind the hill, it was quite dark. It was dry and clean and apparently empty. The man stood looking at her smiling, at least there was a suggestion of a smile upon his lips. He was nodding his head. She understood that he lived there. The dog had come back to his kennel and had taken this acquaintance there, too.

It would be a good place to pass the night. The night had to be passed somewhere. How, was the problem. She had little fear of any savage animals on the island. There had been no evidence of them observed in her progress; the man himself was testimony to immunity of attack from that source. Had it not been for him, she could have lain down in that cave with quiet confidence and slept without apprehension of molestation, but he complicated the issue.

Twice he had watched by her asleep, but that was in the broad daylight. When darkness came, what then? Her heart was filled with terror. She was suddenly afraid of the dark, a childish fear at which her soul would have mocked in other days and under other conditions. But now she was a prey to vivid apprehension and the night was coming on with the swiftness of the tropics. She was glad that she had slept through the long afternoon. She would endeavor to keep awake during the night. She must turn the dog out of his kennel and occupy that herself. How was she to enforce her will under the circumstances? She could only try.

"Man," she said, pointing to the door, "go!"

The words conveyed nothing, but the gesture meant much. Even to the man association with his kind for one day had effected a revolution in him. He hung undecided, however, before her, while she repeated again and again her injunction. Finally she took him by the shoulder, risking the peculiar emotions that contact seemed to bring to him, and thrust him gently through the entrance outside. Then she went back into the cave further and waited with a beating heart. She could see him standing against the twilight standing where she had left him. He came toward the door at last and stood in the entrance.

"No, no!" she cried fiercely, praying that the note of terror might be lost in the imperative tones of her voice. "Man, go!"

She stood waiting and he likewise. Mustering her courage at last, she went over to him and thrust him out. Again and again the little drama was played until by and by it became impressed upon the mind of the man that he was to stay out and she was to stay in. He came no more to the entrance. He stood outside, aloof, looking in, although in the growing darkness he could not see her.

It was the second thing he had learned. The first ray of light in his dawning consciousness had illumined the ego, the personal, the concrete. He was learning now the significance of a verb and an abstract idea was being bred in him and some concept of constraint was entering his being. The first of those long checks that circumstances impose upon freedom in order that civilization may be gin to be was then meeting him face to face. He had slept in that cave, he imagined, for years, and suddenly he was thrust out. There was no hardship in that, except the hardship in the necessity for obedience, if hardship that might be. The night was balmy and pleasant; no shelter was needed. It was the fact that he had to go; that he was subject to another will and purpose; that something higher than himself was overruling him which might be hard. It would have been hard for the woman. She thought, however, that the limited comprehension of the man might not enable him to realize it.

He stood a long time on the sand while she watched him. Had she conquered? Had he learned his lesson? Had she laid foundations upon which consciousness of life and its relations might be build? Would she be free from the terror of molestation, which in spite of herself sought expression in her voice and manner? Would she be permitted to pass the night undisturbed? Was her power over him sufficient?

What would he do next? He rose to his feet and peeped toward the door. She grasped the scissoring light and held her breath. But he had learned his lesson. With indescribable relief she saw him turn aside and cast himself down upon the sand where he lay motionless. If she had had any faith she would have breathed "Thank God!" As it was, she was very glad.

She watched him a long time, speculating on the questions she had asked him on the hill in the morning; who he was what he was; whence he came; where he had learned that babble of prayer; why he was devoid of speech; what was the God to whom he prayed? She would study those things. The problems fascinated her. The desolation and loneliness of the island might have crushed her. Released from her immediate apprehensions she was now able to see things as they were. She would investigate him, analyze him, synthesize him, teach him. She would mother him as a woman a child. No such opportunity as was hers had ever presented itself to a human being. Free, as she imagined herself, from inherited prejudices, devoid of old superstitions, crammed with new learnings, illumined with new light, she fancied herself well fitted for that strangely maternal and preceptive role in which chance had placed her. She would play upon that mind virgin to her touch, if she might use a woman's word, until it ran in harmony with her own. Alone upon that island, the rest of the world away, she would find occupation, interest, inspiration in that nascent man.

He lay so still and so quiet that presently she arose and tiptoed softly to the entrance where unknown she could look down upon him. The moon rose back of the hill. Although he was in the shadow, there was still reflection sufficient to enable her to see his face. He was asleep. The quiet, dreamless, untroubled sleep of a healthy animal, she thought. Their positions were reversed. He had watched her before when she was off guard and asleep with what dim, dumb, inchoate effort it might be to comprehend her. Now it was her turn. He took no disfavor in her mind after her inspection. He was a bold, splendid piece of what? Clay. She would put a soul in him, her soul. Her soul was the only thing she knew. She forgot, or if she remembered it, distained the ancient concept that before the dust of the earth became alive it had to be permeated with the breath not merely of man or woman, but of God.

She came back at last and sought her corner, disposed her limbs to rest and kept through silent hours her lonely vigil. So long as he slept she was safe. When he awakened, what then? So long as his mind slept, his soul slept, his consciousness slept, she was safe, but when they, too, awakened, when whatsoever light there might be that dawned in personality dispelled the night of idle dreams in which he lived, what would happen then?

Instinctively she shrank from the thought of the future. She was as one who had a potent talisman in her hand and feared to put it to the touch. He the fisherman in the Arabian tale, if he had known the contents of the corked bottle thrown up from the sea, might have hastened ere he drew the stopper and released the prisoned spirit. She must watch, she must wait, she must be on her guard. She forgot that when she had called him "Man" and laid her hand upon his shoulder she had begun an evolution which no human power could stop.

Never had the hours seemed so long and so strange to her. Nothing happened. Even the capacity to think gives out in the strongest mind, the keenest brain, temporarily or otherwise. She was very tired; the silence was oppressive; the rusty scissoring fall from her hand and at last she slipped down upon the sand and drifted away into that slumber, that suspension of consciousness in which for the moment she was even as the man.

The upper edge of the sun was just appearing from the sea when its level rays woke her. She opened her eyes to find the man standing in the opening.
